ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Joaquin Avila was born in Guantanamo, Cuba in 1989 and has rapidly established himself as one of the most compelling voices in contemporary Cuban painting. His work gained international attention when a piece donated to the United Nations auction for Scholas — Pope Francis's global education initiative — sold for a considerable sum, leading to a personal audience with His Holiness at the Vatican in March 2019. Avila subsequently painted the largest mural in New York City history, cementing his reputation as an artist of both institutional recognition and popular reach. His figurative paintings draw on Cuban artistic tradition, Baroque portraiture, and African spiritual symbolism to create works of immediate visual power and cultural depth.

ARTWORK DESCRIPTION

Baroque Woman is Avila's bold reimagining of Vermeer's Girl with a Pearl Earring — the seventeenth-century Dutch masterpiece translated through the artist's expressive Cuban-modernist palette of greens, blues, and golds. Avila retains the iconic three-quarter pose, the luminous complexion, and the glance over the shoulder that make Vermeer's original one of Western art's most compelling images, while the fluid, gestural acrylic handling declares unambiguously contemporary and Caribbean roots. The result is a genuine reimagining rather than homage — a dialogue between canons separated by three and a half centuries.

VALUATION

Estimated Gallery Value: $7,500 – $10,000 USD

Insured Value: $16,000 – $20,000 USD

CURATORIAL NOTES

Baroque Woman contributes to a significant Avila grouping within the collection — one of the deepest holdings of this artist's work currently available in a single private collection. The combination of papal recognition, the New York City mural commission, and sustained gallery representation positions Avila as one of the most compelling emerging Cuban artists in the international market.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

Market Context: Avila's recognition by Pope Francis at the Vatican and his New York City mural commission represent institutional validation of exceptional significance for an artist of his generation. Gallery pricing for his unique acrylic works is consistent with this valuation range and reflects sustained demand from collectors of Cuban and Latin American contemporary art. Direct artist provenance with Certificate of Authenticity.
