ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Joaquin Avila was born in Guantanamo, Cuba in 1989 and has rapidly established himself as one of the most compelling voices in contemporary Cuban painting. His work gained international attention when a piece donated to the United Nations auction for Scholas — Pope Francis's global education initiative — sold for a considerable sum, leading to a personal audience with His Holiness at the Vatican in March 2019. Avila subsequently painted the largest mural in New York City history, cementing his reputation as an artist of both institutional recognition and popular reach. His figurative paintings draw on Cuban artistic tradition, Baroque portraiture, and African spiritual symbolism to create works of immediate visual power and cultural depth.

ARTWORK DESCRIPTION

Girl in Pink is Avila's reimagining of the Velázquez Meninas tradition — the Infanta figure here rendered in warm pinks and reds against a rich interior setting, the formal court dress translated into Avila's gestural acrylic language with a tenderness that the original's stiff ceremony rarely permits. The pink palette establishes a mood of lyrical warmth that contrasts productively with the historical weight of the Velázquez source, Avila's handling liberating the figure from ceremonial rigidity into something approaching affection.

VALUATION

Estimated Gallery Value: $7,500 – $10,000 USD

Insured Value: $16,000 – $20,000 USD

CURATORIAL NOTES

Girl in Pink contributes to a significant Avila grouping within the collection — one of the deepest holdings of this artist's work currently available in a single private collection. The combination of papal recognition, the New York City mural commission, and sustained gallery representation positions Avila as one of the most compelling emerging Cuban artists in the international market.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

Market Context: Avila's recognition by Pope Francis at the Vatican and his New York City mural commission represent institutional validation of exceptional significance for an artist of his generation. Gallery pricing for his unique acrylic works is consistent with this valuation range and reflects sustained demand from collectors of Cuban and Latin American contemporary art.
